Extremism & Radicalisation Statutory Prevent Duty

A guide for Safeguarding Adults Practitioners
The Statutory Prevent Duty came into force in 1 July 2015. It is a Legal Duty which requires certain organisations to have ‘due regard to the need to prevent people from being drawn into terrorism’.

If you work in the Council, or your organisation/service is funded by the Council or the NHS, the Statutory Prevent Duty applies to you and your organisation/service.

Counter-Terrorism & Security Act 2015

Safeguarding adults with care and support needs

Radicalisation of adults with care and support needs is a form of emotional/psychological exploitation used to encouraging extremism.

The aim of radicalisation is to attract people to a particular extremist ideology. In many cases it is with a view to inspiring them eventually to become involved with extremist, harmful or terrorist activities.

As with other forms of grooming, Radicalisation is carried out over a period of time. Radicalisation can take place in person through direct contact, or indirectly online.

If you are concerned that an adult with care and support needs is at risk of being groomed by extremists or radicalised and drawn into terrorism, you should treat it as any other safeguarding concern.

1. Report your concerns to your line manager.

2. Record it as a safeguarding concern about emotional/psychological abuse. If there are concerns that the person has had physical threats or harm, then record as both emotional/psychological abuse and physical abuse.

3. Continue with the safeguarding process as usual, speak with your line manager. Cross reference the concerns with the “Indicators of Concern Matrix” (pages 4 - 6) to support your decision making.

4. Consider if the adult at risk needs to be referred to Channel. The Indicators of Concern Matrix attached can support your decision-making.

   - ‘Cause for concern’ - should be referred to Channel
   - ‘Significant Cause for Concern’ - should be referred to Channel.

5. To make a referral You / Your Manager should contact your Prevent Safeguarding Lead for your organisation/department or refer to the contact details as listed on page 3.

Some adults at risk may more be vulnerable to being exploited emotionally by extremists?

Social isolation can be common among people with disabilities. Extremists can manipulate people into feeling a sense of ‘belonging’. As with many abusers, Extremists will aim to create the impression of attractive alternatives to bring people round to their way of thinking. Getting involved in extremist activities can seem appealing because it can give a sense of life purpose.

Learning disabilities or some types of mental health needs may make a person vulnerable. They may lack the ability to think critically compare ideologies or challenge what they are being told in person or online.

Extremists can exploit these vulnerabilities and draw people into Extremist or Terrorist activities. Through the safeguarding and/or the Channel process, these vulnerabilities can be addressed.

For example, social isolation can be addressed through a range of social services or Channel interventions.
What is Channel?

Channel is a multi-agency partnership process offering support and intervention at the earliest opportunity to stop people being drawn into extremism and/or terrorism. Channel is not a criminal process – it is designed to support people at the earliest possible opportunity before they become involved in harmful or illegal activity.

Who can refer to Channel?

Any professional can refer to Channel. Referrals are pre-screened for suitability by the Sutton Council Safer Sutton Partnership Service and the MET Police. If a referral is deemed suitable, it will be discussed at a multi-agency Channel panel meeting.

The Statutory Prevent Duty directs professionals to comply with this statutory duty, this includes sharing concerns and information to safeguard someone to keep them from being harmed or exploited by extremists.

Is Consent Required?

Participation in Channel is voluntary. It is up to an individual, or their parents for children aged 17 and under, to decide whether to take up the support it offers. Channel does not lead to a criminal record.

How does Channel work?

The Statutory Prevent Duty states that every Local Authority in England and Wales should have a Channel framework in place, this includes a referral pathway and monthly multi-agency Channel Panel.

Channel Panels are chaired by the local authority and bring together multi-agency partners to collectively assess the risks and offer a range of support / interventions to support people who may be vulnerable to being drawn into extremism and or terrorism. In Sutton the Channel Panel sits within the Safer Sutton Partnership Service and is chaired by the Head of Community Safety.

Channel is about early intervention to protect people from being drawn into extremism or committing terrorist-related activities.

If you have referred an individual to Channel, you may be invited to attend the Channel Panel. Please be prepared to speak about identified risk factors, for example, ‘increased vulnerability due to learning disability or mental health issues’. You will also need to identify any protective factors.

The Channel panel will then agree the next steps, a support package may be agreed for a person at risk of being groomed or radicalised by extremists. Support may be offered by health services, education professionals, employment services, housing, specialist mentoring, faith based guidance or through diversionary activities such as sport.

Radicalisation & Extremism
Indicators of Concern Matrix

The aim of this document is to help practitioners in their decision-making about level of concern. However, each case will be different and practitioners should use their professional judgement in considering the risks and protective factors. This document should not be used as a ‘tick box’ exercise.

Practitioners should give careful consideration to:
- The mental capacity of the service user to weigh, use and retain information about extremist views and becoming involved in extremism
- The extent to which the service user’s disability or health issues make them vulnerable to being drawn into or exploited by others with extremist or radicalising intentions
- The human rights of all UK citizens to:
  • freedom of association (Article 11)
  • freedom of expression (Article 10)
  • freedom of thought, conscience and religion (Article 9)
  • right to respect for a private and family life (Article 8)

If you are unsure about what steps to take, seek advice from your line manager. As with all safeguarding, it is safer to share concerns even if it later turns out to be inaccurate.
